oHealth Center for Rehabilitation Research were honored at the Case Western Reserve University (CWRU) Inaugural Innovation Week, held last month.

Niloy Bhadra, MD, PhD, Associate Professor of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation (PM&R), and Kevin Kilgore, PhD, Professor of Orthopedics and PM&R, were recognized under the category of Excellence in Device Innovation. P. Hunter Peckham, PhD, Professor Emeritus of Biomedical Engineering and Co-Director of the MetroHealth Rehabilitation Institute, received the Lifetime Achievement Award.

A total of 30 CWRU faculty members were honored for their impressive records of research and entrepreneurship during an awards ceremony, as part of the University's Inaugural Innovation Week.

In addition to honoring outstanding faculty, the Innovation Week included panel discussions among CWRU faculty, staff, students, and partners. Topics included venture capital investments, insights from CWRU's National Academy of Inventors members (Dr. Peckham is a member), and on-campus resources for faculty innovators. The event also included a two-minute poster pitch competition for students and post-docs.
